

The Lilly Fellows Program, based in Christ College, the interdisciplinary honors college of Valparaiso University in northwest Indiana, seeks to renew and enhance the connections between Christianity and the academic vocation at church-related colleges and universities.

The Program sustains three distinct yet integrated initiatives.

■ The Lilly Network of Church-Related Colleges and Universities

Established in 1991, the Lilly Network of Church-Related Colleges and Universities addresses issues of common interest to institutions in church-related higher education. Through their collaborative efforts, the Network's 98 members explore the relationship of Christianity to the academic vocation and strengthen the religious character of the institutions through a variety of activities and publications. The Lilly Network sponsors a wide array of grant opportunities, fellowships, conferences, workshops, and programmatic initiatives for member schools.

■ The Lilly Graduate Fellows Program

The Lilly Graduate Fellows Program supports, during the course of their graduate education, exceptionally well qualified young men and women who have undergraduate degrees from Lilly Network Schools and who are interested in becoming teacher-scholars at church-related colleges and universities in the United States.

■ The Lilly Postdoctoral Teaching Fellowship at Valparaiso University

Lilly Postdoctoral Teaching Fellowships at Valparaiso University are designed for teacher-scholars who seek to renew and enrich their intellectual and spiritual lives while preparing for careers in church-related institutions of higher learning.

Together these programs, along with numerous publications both electronic and print, bring focus, clarity, and energy to a critical aspect of a much larger project: the imaginative reformulation and implementation of an agenda for church-related higher learning.
